

Author Bio

Terri Bryson-Sinclair began drawing as a small child. She has received numerous awards and recognition in school for her artwork. She earned a Bachelor degree in Graphic Arts and Illustration from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. After college, she has enjoyed working as an illustrator, graphic designer, freelance photographer, web designer and a teacher. Being a mom has inspired her to write children books. She wrote ABC Drawings for children ages 6 to 10+. It can be used in a classroom as well. It is available as an ebook on Amazon as ABC drawings step by step drawings using the alphabets. ABC Drawings is the first book Terri has published, however, she plans to write several children and adult books in the near future.

Book Bio

I created this book for many reasons. As a child, I would check-out as many how-to-draw books from the library as I could. I found that most of the forms, lines and shapes in the books were much too advanced for me...I often got discouraged. While working as an art teacher, I wanted to develop a way to teach all the children how to draw. I realized that all the students knew the alphabets. So, I began using the alphabets as shapes to teach the students how to draw. Before long, all the students were drawing and painting fantastic pictures! Studies have shown that the relationship between art and mental health have been connected to mindfulness, attentiveness, creativity and even improve cognition. There are also measurable benefits of art in education, such as increased academic performance and the development of innovative thinking. Writing this book has allowed me to explore my creativity and to share it with you. With every letter, I've learned something new. It gives me tremendous joy to have written this book, I hope you enjoy it as well.
